

RETURN OF THE REJECTS!

The All-American Rejects are back in action with the recent CD When the World Comes Down, in stores now! Popstar! caught up with lead singer Tyson Ritter to chat about the band's return to the scene!

Popstar!: How does this album compare with your previous two? Did you set out to purposely make it different?

Tyson: We didn't do anything stupid like trying to rewrite a Beatles record. All we did was we sought out to make the best record we'd ever made in our lives. And I think we're happy with what we've done.

Popstar!: Does topping your prior success ever come to mind when putting out new material?

Tyson: Yeah, I guess topping our prior success comes to mind because it was such a fun run we had last time. We got to see the whole world and sell two million records and have a bunch of kids sing to us every night. It was awesome! But pressures are only put on you by yourself so I think yeah, we put a lot of pressure on ourselves. And you know, luckily we're one of those bands that I think can react well under pressure.

Popstar!: In honor of Valentine's

Day, what is the most romantic thing you've ever done for a girl? What's the most romantic thing you wish a girl would do for you?

Tyson: I serenaded my girl on V-day when I was 15—she melted. I would love a life-sized cherub with a heart to come sing for me on Valentine's Day!

Tiffany Talks!

You may have heard the name Tiffany Giardina from Katie and Karleigh or seen her with famous friends the Jonas Brothers! "Me and Nick met in The Sound of Music and we were cast as brother and sister! Our families just grew to be great friends from that!"

Tiffany's songs "No Average Angel" and

"Hurry Up And Save Me" were both featured on the soundtrack of last year's movie Another Cinderella Story, which starred Selena Gomez!

Tiffany's full-length album will be out by the time you read this. "My style's like pop-rock," she explains. "The album's called No Average Angel. [It's] basically about just being yourself and not being afraid to be who you are."

Her friends and family are supersupportive of her career, but at school, she doesn't like to brag! "I don't really talk about it at school," she says. "It's a separate life. Like a real-life Hannah Montana!" Tiffany laughs.
